About Me

I’m Ranya Elgewily, I’m a passionate designer lives in Dubai, with a profound appreciation for all forms of art, and I thrive on the challenge of creating designs that are both simple and elegant. My journey in design has been one of continuous learning and growth; each day presents a new opportunity to refine my skills and explore ideas.

I believe that great design harmonizes creativity with functionality, and I strive to reflect this in every project.

These are my designs for my brand (Ranya Elgewily) with my name. I designed the logo out of 2 letters R for Ranya and E for Elgewily and I put them in a specific order then duplicated the design to be in this way.

I like the simplicity so, a pattern with white and gray works in an elegant way with my golden logo. The name of the brand is in black to pop out and be shown.

Eid Al-Fitr Design

A unique design that comes with bright colors to celebrate that special event all over the world with happiness. With the light color for the background and colorful sprinkles and our iconic element for Eid which is “Kaa`k or Kahk” that each country do it in their special way and taste with grounded sugar on top of it to add more sweetness to it.

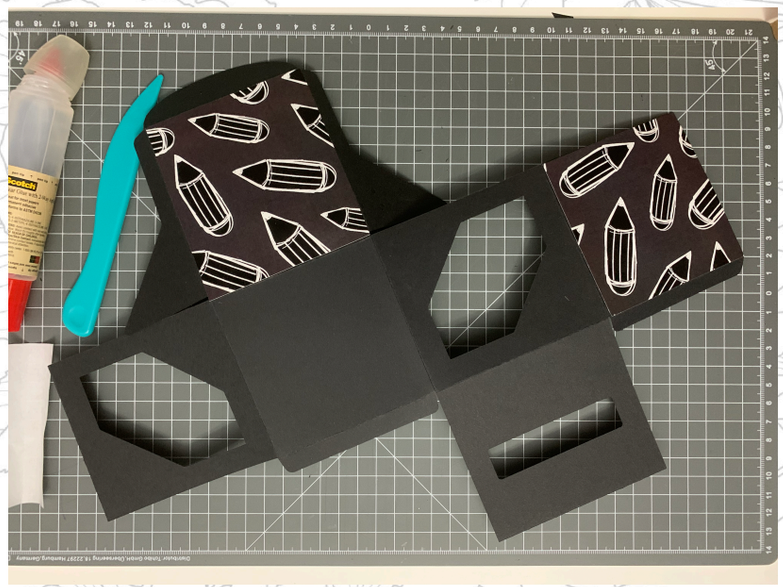

Pencils

I explored the playful yet sophisticated aesthetic of minimalist hand-drawn pencils. The design features a striking black background adorned with white outlined pencil illustrations, creating a bold contrast that captivates the eye. This versatile design has been applied across a variety of products, including digital notebook that you may also print it and use it as a physical product and gift wrapping.

For example, when used in gift wrapping, I incorporate colorful letters that complement the pencil motif, adding of whimsy and personalization.

“Pencils” not only showcases my ability to blend simplicity with creativity but also highlights my commitment to versatility in graphic design.

Zaghroota

This graphic design beautifully encapsulates the essence of Islamic weddings through its elegant simplicity and festive motifs. Featuring a harmonious blend of traditional elements such as a bride wearing hijab and groom, wedding cakes, and bouquets, the design is further elevated by the celebratory Arabic script "زغلوطة ، زلغوطة ، زغروطة" (Zaghloota, Zalghoota, Zaghroota), which signifies joy and festivity in Arab culture.

The monochromatic palette allows for versatility, making it suitable for a wide range of products, from invitations to home décor items.

This design not only honors cultural traditions but also enhances the celebratory atmosphere of weddings, making it a perfect choice for those seeking to add a touch of sophistication to their special day.

Eid El-Adha

This graphic design beautifully captures the essence of Eid Al-Adha with a harmonious blend of Arabic calligraphy and a joyful sheep illustration. The background is adorned with elegant Arabic script, creating a textured, artistic effect that adds cultural depth to the composition.

The prominent calligraphy at the top, spelling out "عـيد سـعيد" (Happy Eid), is bold and graceful, enhancing the celebratory feel. The central focus of the design is a charming, cartoon-style sheep, a symbolic representation of the holiday's traditions. With its soft pastel colors, blushing cheeks, and cheerful expression, the sheep conveys warmth, happiness, and festivity.

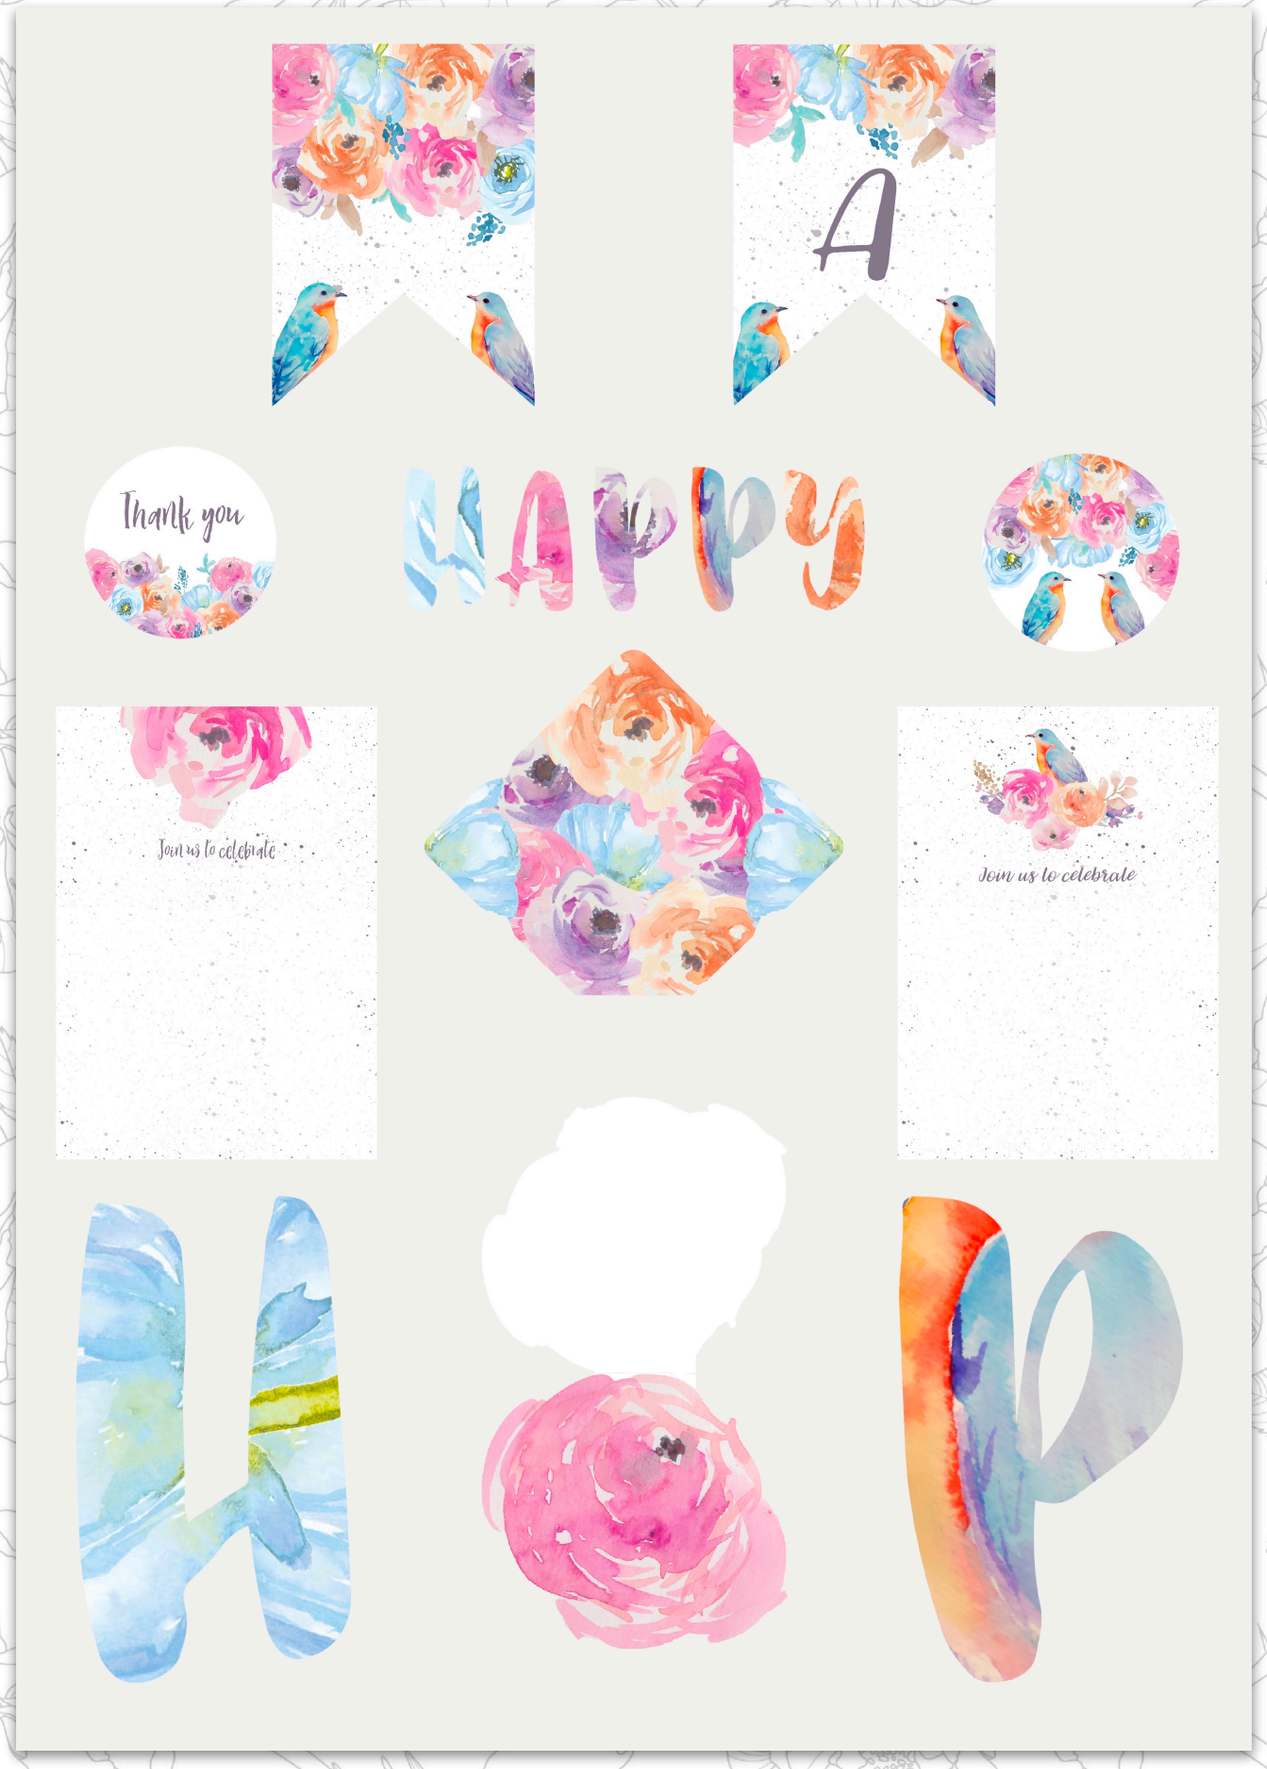

The overall color palette, dominated by soothing shades of gray and white, allows the elements to stand out while maintaining a refined and modern aesthetic. This design perfectly encapsulates the spirit of Eid Al-Adha, blending tradition with a playful and contemporary artistic approach.

Celebrate in style

These handcrafted paper designs showcase my expertise in creating elegant and festive products that add a special touch to celebrations. The first piece is a vibrant paper cracker, wrapped in bold yellow with striking pink bows, perfect for party favors or holiday gifting. The second creation is an intricately cut cupcake wrapper featuring a delicate design that elevates dessert presentation with an artistic flair. Lastly, the “Family” card, crafted from textured cardstock with detailed cut-out lettering and botanical elements, embodies warmth and sentimentality.

Each of these designs reflects my dedication to precision, creativity, and craftsmanship, turning simple materials into visually captivating and meaningful pieces.

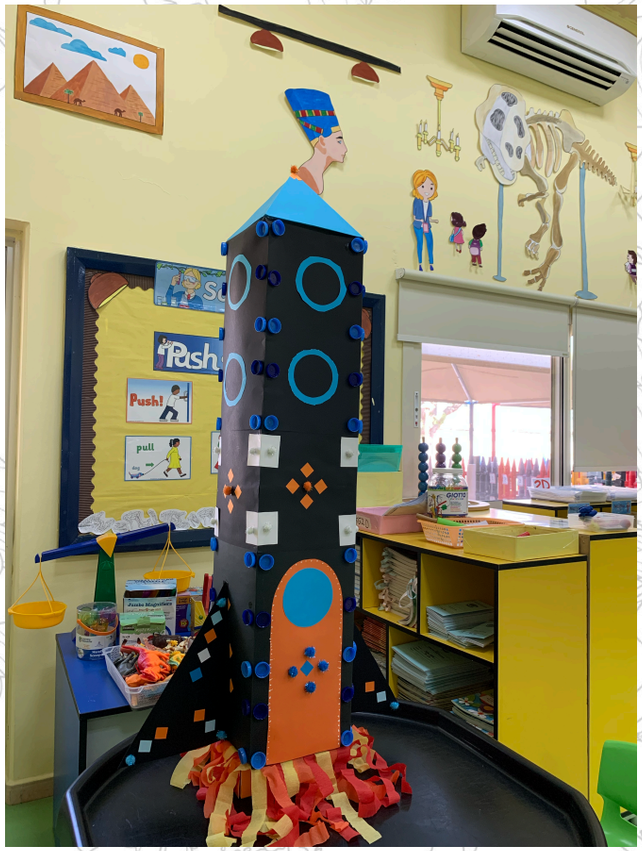

Paper Sculptures

This photo showcases a vibrant paper sculpture display created for a school stage, consisting of two large boards decorated with three-dimensional fruits and vegetables made entirely from paper. The bold and colorful handcrafted elements bring the message, "You are what you eat, from your head to your feet," to life, emphasizing the importance of healthy eating. The paper sculptures are carefully folded, layered, and shaped to mimic real produce, adding depth and texture to the design. The project was completed in just one week, showcasing an impressive level of craftsmanship and teamwork in transforming simple materials into an eye-catching and educational stage decoration.

This project was created as part of World Space Week, where a group of 24 KG2 students collaborated to build a large 3D rocket using colored cardboard. I was teaching the students the techniques to create it in this way. The rocket features a striking black and orange design with blue and white accents, giving it a bold and imaginative look. The fiery paper flames at the base add a dynamic effect, making it appear ready for liftoff. This hands-on activity fostered teamwork, creativity, and excitement for space learning among the young students.

📚 Today a reader, tomorrow a leader❤️Keep it up IPS M Little Learners ❤️ Reading Week was a wonderful opportunity to promote reading and the love of books for IPS M KG students.Throughout the week, students were exploring different books in different languages and participated in various activities. They had the chance to visit the book fair and picked up their favorite book. We wrapped up the week with the Book Character Day, where they had the chance to show and tell about their favorite book.

Educational Projects

The design of the bulletin board for our ICT room

In a world where technology and global citizenship are more important than ever, I wanted to create an engaging and visually appealing display that reflects diversity and inclusivity.

To achieve this, I incorporated Memojis—the playful, customizable avatars that represent different individuals from various backgrounds. Each Memoji was designed to embody diverse perspectives and experiences, emphasizing the importance of global citizenship within our tech-savvy environment.

Unfortunately I removed one of the words to fit in the bulletin board, but I added more Memojis to the design. We are going to add photos of the students' work on the iPad areas to show the parents their kids' work, and let the students be proud of their achievements and encourage them to do more and get inspired.

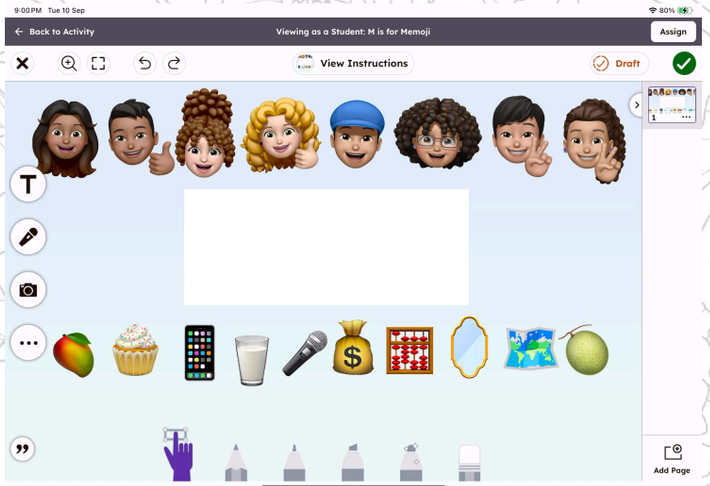

Letter M Activity "Memoji"

I had the pleasure of guiding my KG2 students with the class teacher through a fun and engaging Seesaw activity, that designed by me, focused on the letter "M".

One of the key highlights of this activity was the recording feature on Seesaw, where students had the opportunity to articulate their thoughts and share their sentences. It was wonderful to hear their voices and see their confidence shine as they presented their work!

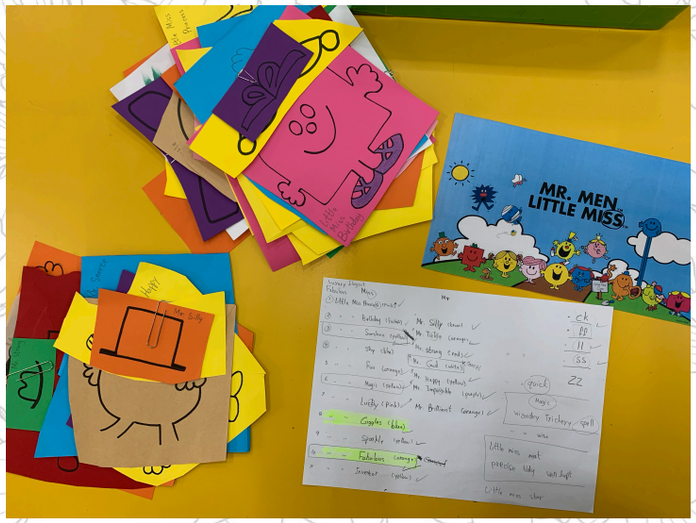

This experience not only reinforced letter recognition but also encouraged self-expression, and technological skills. I'm continually amazed by how excited my students are to explore and learn through innovative tools like Seesaw.

Seesaw

As a Seesaw Pioneer, I take pride in creating a diverse array of educational activities that enrich the learning experience of students.

Each activity on the platform is thoughtfully crafted, featuring colorful thumbnails and themes that captivate young learners' attention.

A museum theme is an interesting decoration for a classroom. We explore and live the history. I tried to design everything starting from outside to inside the classroom be related to each other and get the feeling that it's really a museum but suitable for kids.

Mood Boards

I specialize in designing and creating mood boards using Pantone colors to craft elegant and cohesive themes for weddings and celebrations.

Each mood board is carefully curated to capture the essence of the event, blending fashion, decor, florals, and beauty elements into a unified vision.

By utilizing Pantone's precise color system, I ensure a sophisticated and harmonious palette that enhances every detail, from invitations to table settings.
